SHOTO

The manufacturing process and the coloration exclusively effected by hand on our shoes produce particular folds on the leather and color-veinings franting a deliberately “vintage” aspect.

Therefore, any fault in our shoes proves that they are handmade. The role of each member in the business has been since 1970 key to the success on Italian and international markets. From a very small village in the province of Fermo we sell our products all over the world, owing to our love for tradition.

In a time of worldwide companies we still want to remain a small business which guarantees the quality of its products because quality is every time a question of details. We have always wished to grab our customers' attention being constantly memorized emotionally by the buyer, maintaining our tradition and constantly looking forward innovations.

The secret of the company's growth is kept in Sir Graziano's inborn skills who has given the techniques and handcraft of the shoe manufacturing to his son Zeno Rolando; Up to the strong personality of the son Stefano and of the special creativity of the brother Simone.
